Service IT (2)

- (a) Identify the market research methods employed by Cora in the past and those that could make her business successful in the future.

Answer

Six points from below (two past and two future)

In the past

- She used observation on a trip abroad to get her original idea
- Observation in the operation of her business to identify a market need
- Survey of home computer users
- Customers were asked for feedback
- Reading business magazines

In the future

- Desk research can be used to identify towns that would be big enough to support a franchise operation.
- Observation by visiting towns to identify new locations
- Surveys by questionnaire of potential customers in large towns

- (b) Evaluate the benefits of expanding the business through franchising compared to organic growth.

Answer

Any five points below (5 x 6 marks) 3 for benefit and 3 for comparison.

- Low capital investment – have to find a lot of capital.
- Low risk for franchise holder – organic growth carries all the risk of each new outlet.
- Allows rapid expansion – organic limited to slower pace.
- Only small management team required – organic requires bigger increase in staff and management.
- Development of strong national brand through advertising – organic growth could only support local advertising for each branch.
- Profits increase in proportion to the sales of each franchise outlet – organic profits may be reduced by expenses of the firm.

- Successful franchise may have export potential – organic growth would be slower to realise export potential.

(c) Analyse the opportunities and threats facing Service IT in exporting to EU markets.

Answer

Five points (5 x 5 marks), two opportunities and two threats required

Opportunities

- EU membership, Irish firms have free access to the markets of other member countries.
- Exporting gives access to very large markets.
- Euro currency gives Irish companies an advantage exporting to other Eurozone countries, i.e. no exchange risk.
- The English language is an advantage for Irish companies as it is the most used language in international trade.
- The Irish diaspora – there are many Irish migrants running businesses abroad who will help our exporters.
- Help from state agencies – Irish exporters can get help from these agencies with selling abroad.

Threats

- The firm is not known abroad to date.
- Ireland's location means the firm will have high transport costs in selling abroad.
- Product standards and regulations of other countries have to be met.
- Export business will require the use of different languages.
- Trading in different currencies leaves a firm open to exchange risk if one currency changes in value relative to the other.
- Payment difficulties, it may not be easy to make secure payment between different countries.
- There are many competitors trying to get the same business internationally.

Adtoons Ltd

(a) Outline the stages in the Product Development Process of Adtoons Ltd.

Answer

Seven points (5 x 4 plus 2 x 5)

- Idea generation - 'product advertising cartoons'.
- Screening ideas – 'a cartoon using a funny bunny character initially in 25 languages'.
- Concept development – 'developed production technology to synchronise the voiceover of the cartoon film with many different languages'.
- Feasibility – they produced an actual cartoon to prove to customers that it could be used for selling their products.
- Prototype – they made a prototype cartoon to demonstrate that they could do it.
- Test marketing – they used the prototype cartoon to test market their advertising idea.
- Product launch – 'initially in 25 languages'.

(b) Outline the short and medium sources of finance that Adtoon could use to fund the growth of the firm.

Answer

Five points including two short and two medium sources of finance (5 x 5 marks)

Short term sources

To finance expenditure up to a period of one year

- Overdraft facilities - borrow money on the firm's current account from the bank.
- Unpaid expenses – the firm can delay the payment of its expenses to the maximum it can without upsetting its suppliers.
- Creditors – delay payments to creditors as much as possible.
- Factoring debts – arrange with the bank to prepay the amount owed by debtors to the firm. The bank charges a fee for providing this finance.

Medium term sources

To finance expenditure from one to five years such as purchase of equipment, vehicles or machinery.

- Term loan from bank repayable over up to five years with regular instalment payments.
- Leasing an asset – the firm may rent an asset for a period of time from a finance company (bank) and have full possession and use of the asset.
- Hire purchase – the firm can purchase an asset over a number of years paying a deposit followed by regular instalments to the finance company (bank). Ownership comes with payment of last instalment. Interest is charged by the bank.

(c) Evaluate the global marketing mix of Adtoons Ltd

Answer

Four elements to answer (1 x 7 marks and 3x 6 marks). Four marks for evaluation included

- Product
The product is not standardised as each cartoon advertisement is a one-off design. The product is adapted for each market with a different language voiceover. The language voiceover is a unique selling point. The speed of producing different language voiceovers makes the product attractive to global firms.
- Price
Price can be very competitive because their new technology reduces production time and cost of production. Pricing will depend on conditions in different markets and on the global firms who are buying the product. Some will be more price sensitive than others. Pricing will also depend on the level of competition for a particular advertising contract.
- Place
Normal channels of distribution do not apply as the product is in an electronic form and as a result does not require physical transportation. Once a cartoon is produced it can be distributed globally in electronic form in a very short time.
- Promotion
The production and sale of a specialised product like an advertising cartoon is done on a one-to-one basis with each global firm. Adtoons have used a sample cartoon illustrating what they do as a way of promoting their advertising cartoons. The development of the cartoon character called Funny Bunny gives an identity to their marketing efforts.

Luxury Chocolates Ltd

(a) Evaluate the marketing mix of Luxury Chocolates Ltd.

Answer

Four aspects of marketing mix (4 x 5 marks) plus evaluation 5 marks

- Product
High quality product – delicious chocolate
USP of gift wrapping and mailing anywhere in world
Brand name emphasises high end product
Locally sourced ingredients
- Price
Pricing is high to position the product at the top end of the market
High price matches with high quality of the product
Price allows the firm to earn good profit levels
The firm is not competing on price to win customers
- Place
There are a number of effective channels of distribution available to the firm.
The direct channel to the consumer is used through the retail outlet at the production unit.
They also sell direct through their website with postal delivery – manufacturer to consumer.
They distribute on the home market by van to retailers who sell-on to consumers.
In new foreign markets they will probably distribute to importer wholesalers who will in turn sell to retailers and they will sell to consumers.
- Promotion
The full range of promotional methods can be used, such as, advertising, sales promotion, merchandising, personal selling, public relations, sponsorship.
They use sales promotion in their factory shop letting visitors see and sample the product.
They advertise and promote their products through their website.
They advertise also on their delivery vans which are on the public roads every day.

(b) Outline how Luxury Chocolates Ltd benefits the local and national economy.

Answer

Any five points (5 x 5 marks)

Local Economy

- It provides employment for the local population.
- It also provides indirect jobs in firms that supply Luxury Chocolates.
- The employees spend their money with local businesses, benefitting the community.
- It provides a market for local producers who supply the firm.
- They are a role model for other local entrepreneurs encouraging them to start new businesses.
- They support the local third level college and take students on work placements.

National economy

- Creating new jobs reduces the amount of unemployment benefit the government has to pay out.
- Increased business activity results in increased taxes being paid to the government, such as, income tax, VAT and CPT.
- The increase in exports from the country will improve the overall Balance of Payment for the government.
- The firm's support to the local college will reduce the amount the government has to spend on education.

(c) Analyse the opportunities and challenges facing Luxury Chocolates Ltd in selling on international markets.

Answer

Six points (6 x 5 marks), two opportunities and two challenges required

Opportunities

- Selling abroad gives access to many large markets.
- Selling to a number of different markets allows the firm to spread its risk.
- Increasing its sales will also allow the firm to reduce its costs through economies of scale. Lower costs will result in higher profits.
- The firm may learn new ideas in the new markets to lower costs or improve their product.
- As a food exporter the firm will benefit from the green image Ireland has for its food exports.
- The firm will have free access to all of the EU markets.
- As English speakers the company will benefit from the fact that English is the most used language in international trade.

Challenges

- On international markets there are many competitors.
- Ireland's location as an island on the west side of Europe make our transport costs high relative to many of our competitors.

- Exporting to countries who don't share the same currency exposes the firm to exchange risk when the relative values of the currencies change. At best this leads to uncertainty and may lead to financial loss.
- Trading abroad means the firm has to work in various languages which can present difficulties and costs.
- The firm may have to ensure that their product meets certain standards before it can be exported to other countries.

Southern Farmers Co-Op/SFC plc

(a) Describe the importance of market research at each stage of the development and marketing of a product range such as ICO.

Answer

Any five points (30 marks)

- To prove that there is a consumer need for the product.
- To establish that there is a large potential market for the product (Jim conducted market research to identify the product areas that have real growth potential).
- To learn about competitors in the marketplace.
- To prove there is a consumer need for the product (Jim committed a substantial budget to researching new consumer focused products).
- To select a brand name that consumers will respond well to and identify readily (market research established that the brand name ICO has international appeal).
- To identify marketing strengths or unique selling points for the product. Confirm consumer demand for the product concept.
- To do market research taste testing of the product at an early stage to confirm customer approval.
- To identify why changing trends in the market for the products which should be responded to, e.g. demand for recyclable packaging, low fat products, natural flavours.
- Market research can assist in decisions on marketing strategies, e.g. type of advertising and promotional methods used.
- To confirm pricing strategy is acceptable to consumers.
- Test marketing of the final product combined with consumer feedback research can confirm the correct product and marketing mix before a full launch of a product.
- To confirm the appeal of the products in new and foreign markets before selling into these markets.

(b) Evaluate the reasons why Southern Farmers should change from a coop to a public limited company.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

Allows the business to raise capital from the general public and not just from farmer members.

Being a plc allows the business access to capital on a much greater scale.

Allows the business to access finance internationally through registration on stock exchanges in other countries, e.g. London, New York stock exchanges.

Being a plc gives the firm a much higher business profile (publicity) to help it to expand its business.

Formation of a plc allows former investors the opportunity to sell their shares at any time if they wish.

The business can pay for the take over of the other firms with shares in the plc instead of having to pay only in cash.

(c) Discuss the challenges for Southern Farmers of marketing its range of products on international markets compared to the home market.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

Each foreign market is different and market research must be done on each new market to ensure successful marketing planning.

Existing brands may need to be adapted or changed to suit particular international markets.

Difficult decisions have to be made on how to sell the products in each market, e.g. selling from Ireland, setting up subsidiary companies in each country, selling through local agents, franchising to local companies, etc.

It is difficult to win market share starting from nothing against established suppliers in foreign markets.

There is a high level of foreign competition on price and quality in new markets.

There is a difficulty of working across language barriers.

New markets may have different traditions, tastes and preferences which must be allowed for.

Exporting from Ireland, an island on the west of Europe, may incur additional transport costs to be covered.

Exporting outside the Euro zone will involve currency exchange and the danger of exchange fluctuation.

Blue Dragon Transport Ltd.

(a) Identify how government decisions and activities can impact on a company like Blue Dragon.

Answer

Any five points (30 marks)

- Government spending on road and port infrastructures are of benefit to the firm (government spending on road infrastructures has improved their business operations as has the improvement of the ferry port at Rosslare).
- Government grants to industry through agencies like Enterprise Ireland can reduce the cost of capital investments (a large government grant allowed them to part finance the building of a new repair, maintenance and transshipment depot).
- Government attraction of transnational corporations to set up in Ireland provides more business opportunities for firms like Blue Dragon Transport Ltd. (many of their haulage contracts are with foreign multinationals producing in Ireland and exporting to European destinations).
- Government budgetary decisions such as increased taxes on fuel would have an adverse affect on Blue Dragon Transport Ltd. (they watch each year's budget carefully to see the impact on their business, they are particularly concerned that taxes on fuel do not increase as this would make them less competitive with foreign firms).
- Low levels of general taxation set by government produces growth in the economy and more opportunities for firms like Blue Dragon Transport Ltd.
- Higher levels of government spending indirectly create an increased demand for transport services particularly for imported goods.
- Traffic restrictions and controls on heavy vehicles such as those introduced in Dublin recently cause costly delays for haulage firms.
- Increased levels of tolls charged on roads, bridges and tunnels in Ireland increase costs for Blue Dragon Transport Ltd.
- National arrangements which control the level of pay increases over a period of years help firms to control their wage costs and to plan with more certainty.

- (b) Describe two short term and two medium term sources of finance and identify how each would meet the financing needs of Blue Dragon.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

Short term sources of finance

The firm could negotiate with its bank to have an overdraft facility on its current account allowing them to borrow money on a short term basis up to a certain money limit set by the bank. There is an interest cost for this service. This source of finance can be used to fund the payment for wages or for the purchase of fuel or other short term expenses. It is convenient as you can borrow exactly the amount of money you require.

Invoice discounting can also be used to get cash in the short term. The firm can take invoices which have been issued to debtors but which are not due for payment for a period of time and sell them to a bank for cash payable immediately. The bank will pay less than the full value of the invoice to Blue Dragon Transport Ltd. and will collect the full value of the invoice when they are due for payment, thus making a profit. This short term finance method of raising finance can ensure that there are no cash shortages caused by waiting for debtors to pay.

Medium term sources of finance

The firm could acquire its trucks by leasing them from banks over a period of up to five years. The firm knows how much it will have to pay on a monthly basis and can plan its cash flow. This source of finance is relatively cheap because the banks who own the assets (trucks) can claim large tax reductions and thus can charge relatively low rates by leasing the trucks. However, the company do not own the trucks during the lease period but may have an option to purchase at the end of the lease period.

Blue Dragon Transport Ltd. could purchase its vehicles by taking out term loans from banks for up to five years. These loans must be repaid with interest in instalments over the loan period. These regular payments can be easily budgeted for by the firm. Having cash available to purchase its trucks allows the firm to negotiate low prices as a cash buyer and also has the benefit of them owning the asset from the purchase date.

- (c) Discuss the opportunities and challenges for the firm in selling their service in other EU markets.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

Opportunities

The firm can be very competitive because it has empty trucks returning to Ireland (this involves collecting goods in Europe to fill empty vehicles on their return to Ireland).

The firm has an advantage as it has a lot of knowledge and experience in the Irish transport market.

The EU markets are very large and offer great potential for new business.

With the growth in the Irish economy the demand in Europe for transport services into Ireland is growing.

Threats

There is a high level of competition from many transport firms operating in the EU markets.

Very large transport companies may be able to offer lower prices due to lower costs resulting from economies of scale.

Blue Dragon Transport Ltd. will have to overcome a lack of knowledge of other EU markets and may need to spend money on market research to identify suitable customers. There may be difficulties doing business in a range of different languages in different countries in Europe.

MC Chemicals

- (a) Explain how the EU's common policies improve the opportunities for success of a company like MC Chemicals.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

- The Single European Market (SEM) created a free and open market which allows MC Chemicals access to a large market (the advantage of locating close to EU markets).
- The SEM has also eliminated delays and bureaucracy in shipping goods across the borders and reduced the costs of distribution within the EU.
- EU Structural Policy has provided grant aid for the development of transport infrastructure which makes it much easier for firms like MC Chemicals to export their products from Ireland to mainland Europe.
- EU competition policy has ensured that there is a high degree of open competition in EU markets, making it easier for new firms to enter the market (Mike sees an opportunity to make a similar product in Ireland for sale in the European market).
- The European Monetary Union (EMU) has created a common currency which most EU member states are part of. The Euro reduces currency exchange costs and risk for companies like MC Chemicals when trading within the Eurozone.
- EU environmental policies have ensured that firms who damage the environment will be penalised and will not gain financial advantage (they incurred substantial fines and environmental restoration costs when they were found to be responsible for pollution).

- (b) Draft an outline of the business plan of MC Chemicals under suitable headings, pointing out the importance of each section of the plan to the success of the business.
(25 marks)

M.C. Chemicals Business Plan

The business

MC Chemicals Ltd., Faheen Industrial Estate, Faheen, Co. Roscommon

The firm will manufacture a range of specialised chemical additives for use in the petroleum and plastics industries.

Ownership

The company is owned in equal shareholdings by Mike Collins, Joseph Cochrane, Leone Kuhner and Marion Baker.

Management

Mike Collins	Chief Executive Officer
Joseph Cochrane	Production and Research Director
Leone Kuhner	Marketing Director
Marion Baker	Finance Director

Production Plan

Production plant will operate in County Roscommon. Machinery is installed and approved ready for production. The production of some products will be contracted out to other firms until our plant is fully operational. We hold adequate land for the extension of the factory in time. Twenty qualified staff have been employed and are in training at present.

Marketing Plan

Products will be sold direct to customers throughout the EU by a sales and marketing team of four graduates. Products will also be promoted at special trade exhibitions for the industry. Direct marketing through the internet will also be a key element of marketing our products.

Finance Plan

Long term capital investment required			€2,400,000
Financed by	Grant Aid	€600,000
	Owners Capital	€800,000
	Long Term Loans	€1,000,000	€2,400,000

Medium term finance is required for vehicles, office furniture and equipment of €400,000 will be funded by leasing arrangements. Bank overdraft of €500,000 has been agreed with the bank to cover short term finance needs.

Importance of sections of the plan to the success of the business

The Business: The section sets out clearly the identity of the business and its objectives. Gives the business a clear focus.

Ownership: This indicates who the owners of the business are so that other stakeholders will be encouraged to get involved in making the business a success.

Management: The quality, experience and training of the management team will have a great effect on the success of the business.

Production Plan: Having the correct production facilities in place with a qualified and trained workforce is critical to producing a quality product.

Marketing Plan: This shows that the firm knows how to market its products effectively and has the staff in place to do the work.

Financial Plan: This plan ensures that the correct sources of finance are used for long, medium and short term financing. This will keep the cost of finance as low as possible and will ensure that the firm will not have any cash flow or liquidity problems.

- (c) Analyse the possible costs and benefits to MC Chemicals of taking a positive approach to ethical behaviour and meeting its social responsibilities.

Answer

Any five points (30 marks)

Costs

Giving workers fair pay and conditions may cost the firm more than competitors who do not do so.

Setting up production systems which fully protect the environment can be very expensive. Purchasing raw materials that are less damaging to the environment or to customers may be dearer than other raw materials available.

By operating in a non-exploitative way, the company may give up the opportunity of making higher levels of profit.

Benefits

Ethical and socially responsible firms have performed very well when compared to other competing firms (Mike is determined to be proactive in relation to ethical standards and the social responsibilities of his new company).

By operating in an environmentally friendly way, the firm can avoid legal costs or fines associated with court cases (but they (Nortons) incurred substantial fines and environmental restoration costs when they were found to be responsible for pollution in the area near their plant).

Ethical firms produce higher quality products and earn greater loyalty from their customers (poor quality standards applied by the firm (Nortons) also led to customers taking successful court cases for losses caused by inferior products).

Companies with an openly ethical approach have a distinct marketing advantage over their rival firms. Unethical firms can suffer bad publicity (the firm's image (Norton's) was also badly affected by the media publicity).

Corrabawn Region

(a) Explain how the Corrabawn area has benefited from the community development process.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

- A community enterprises centre has been established.
- Jobs have been created in the area (the community enterprise centre now has four businesses operating in it which employ 40 people).
- The area has been able to attract a foreign company to set up in the region (since the location in the town, two years ago, of a French plastics company employing 30 people).
- People are being attracted into the area to live (the population has started to increase).
- Local businesses have benefitted from the increased spending in the area (the additional wages have given a boost to local businesses).
- The community has been brought together (a group of 20 farmers is developing tourism locally to supplement their income).
- New enterprising ideas are being developed (on farm tourist accommodation, traditional crafts, dying wool and weaving of shawls, sea caves and walking trails, craft shop and tourism centre).

(b) Outline the strategies that the farmers can use to influence the decision of the EU.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

- Make contact with other farmers in Ireland who may be affected by the decision and form a group to work together.
- The farmers should work closely with the national farm organisations to try to influence any decisions that are to be made.
- The farmers could set up a website to create awareness about the issue with the general public and the EU decision makers.

- They should contact their local Member of the European Parliament (MEP) and get them to represent their case in the Parliament.
- They should lobby the offices of the European institutions in Ireland about the issue.
- They should ask the Irish Agriculture Minister to take up their case with the European Commissioner for Agriculture to try to influence the decision.
- They should seek media attention for the issue so that the general public will become aware of the issue.
- They should plan an information campaign and put on a public protest to bring attention to their cause.
- Send a deputation to Europe to meet the decision-makers to argue their case.

(c) Evaluate why a cooperative structure would be more beneficial for the craft and tourism centre than other ownership structures.

Answer

Any five points (30 marks)

- A co-op is suitable where a number of people share a common interest in developing a business, in this case (to set up a craft shop and tourism centre in the town of Corrabawn).
- The various members of the co-op can invest varying amounts of capital, depending on their financial resources.
- The business would be run democratically with each member having one vote when decisions are being made.
- The members of the co-op all have limited liability for the debts of the business which makes it less risky for people to invest in the business.
- New investors can join the co-op as it expands.
- The profits or benefits of the business are shared proportionally among the members.

Audio Devices Ltd

(a) Identify the ways in which the rapid expansion may impact on the company.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

- The organisation structure of the firm may change – it may be more product, or more geographically, based depending on the effects of the growth of the firm.
- The company will most likely change to being a public limited company registered on several international stock exchanges such as London, New York and Tokyo to allow it raise the finance needed for its global operations.
- The firm will enter into business alliances with other companies around the world to allow it to carry out its plans (and another is being built in South Korea in a strategic alliance with a local electronics company).
- Global production in three or more locations around the world will make planning, production and delivery of products much more complicated. For instance, the firm may use production sharing where it produces different parts of products in different locations and then ships them all to one location for assembly.
- The firm will have to change its management approach to a global one with a head office in Ireland and managers who have experience of running a business operating in a number of different countries.
- The firm will have to apply a global marketing approach with a global marketing mix to its rapidly expanding world market.

(b) Compare the benefits and drawbacks of equity and loan finance as ways of meeting the expansion needs of Audio Devices Ltd.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

Equity finance

Benefits

Equity finances does not have to be paid back and so helps the firm's cash flow position. There is no interest to be paid on equity finance.

The firm can pay a dividend to the shareholders if it wishes but does not have to do so every year.

By listing its shares on world stock exchanges the firm will have access to very large amounts of share capital.

The firm can use equity capital to fund the acquisition of other firms by paying in shares, rather than cash.

The firm can use shares and share options to pay and reward its management team to motivate them to achieve its growth objectives.

Drawbacks

The issuing of shares to new owners dilutes the control of the business for the original shareholders.

The firm will need to be profitable so that it can pay out a dividend to the shareholders each year to keep them happy with their investment.

It costs a lot of money to raise finance through the issuing of shares.

Loan finance

Benefits

Loan finance does not affect the control of the business for the shareholders.

Loans are easy to get for a firm that is growing and profitable.

Raising loan finance is relatively cheap.

Loan finance does not affect the sharing out of profits of the firm.

Drawbacks

There is an annual interest cost which must be paid on the loan.

The assets of the company may be given as security for the loan which means that the firm does not have control over disposal of the assets.

The firm must repay the loan over a period of time which is a burden on its cash flow.

(c) Evaluate how changing trends in the international business environment may impact on the development of Audio Devices Ltd.

Answer

Any five points (30 marks)

The growth of large transnational companies and global business means that Audio Devices Ltd. Will face strong competition.

World trade agreements are reducing barriers to international trade and this will favour the firm.

The development of trading blocs such as the European Union create free trade areas. The firm may need to have a production unit inside each large trading bloc in the world. Rapid changes and improvements in communications technology make it easier and cheaper for firms like Audio Devices Ltd. to operate on a global basis.

World transport infrastructure is improving so that firms can produce in different parts of the world and ship their products to other countries relatively easily.

New emerging markets in Asia, Africa and Eastern Europe are major targets for future markets for Audio Devices Ltd.

Sun Products plc

(a) Explain how the business climate created by governments affected Sun Products plc.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

- The government provided grant aid to new firms setting up to help them create jobs (with grant aid from the Irish government).
- To help Irish firms to expand their market the government provided marketing assistance for exporting (further marketing assistance from state agencies helped the business to develop export markets).
- Government commitment to membership of the EU created great opportunities for Irish firms to sell their products in European countries.
- Environmental controls and regulations set by governments of different countries influences where firms choose to locate their business (new production locations have been influenced by local environmental controls).
- Differences in rates of taxes between countries also has a big effect on how firms like Sun Products Ltd. choose the location of their production units (production location have been influenced by the taxation schemes in different countries).

(b) Explain how exploiting the full range of promotional options could increase sales for Sun Products.

Answer

Any five points (25 marks)

Set up a website advertising the products and giving advice on skin protection.

Joint product promotions, e.g. with sale of sunglasses.

Giving out small free samples of the products for consumers to try.

Giving money off coupons for future purchases of the product.

Using label space on one product to advertise and promote another product in the range.

Run competitions for consumers as an incentive for them to purchase the product.

The firm could develop new point of sale promotional displays for the products to encourage consumers to pick the products in the store.

(c) Evaluate the potential benefits and drawbacks of changing to a global company.

Answer

Any five points (30 marks)

Benefits

The firm can gain economies of scale (cost reductions) from producing a standardised product for all world markets.

The firm can benefit from having global brand names which are recognised in all markets and which are cheaper to create than a number of different brands in different markets. The firm can save a lot of money by production sharing where components of products can be produced in different locations and then shipped to another location for final production.

With global brands the firm can develop a global marketing mix for its products which can be more effective and less costly.

Huge amounts can be spent on research and development of new products as these costs can be spread over huge quantities of products being sold.

Global firms can save huge amounts money in taxes by manipulating where they earn their profits and ensuring that they pay the least amount of tax.

Drawbacks

Going global involves the investment of huge amounts of capital in production, marketing and distribution on a global basis which involves some level of risk of failure. By producing one standardised product and marketing one brand the firm is taking a greater risk by 'putting all its eggs in one basket'.

Managing a worldwide business on a 24 hour a day basis places very heavy demands on the management team.

There is always a degree of resistance among consumers to global companies as they are seen as dominating the market and exploiting the consumer.

- Recruit new staff who are innovative/creative
- Monitor competitor products for new ideas
- Monitor trends in foreign markets for ideas
- Access new opportunities by partnering in various ways with the firm that controls the opportunity, e.g. a joint venture
- Import substitution – identify imported products which you could make and supply

- (b) Discuss the challenges and opportunities facing Canvas and Sail Products in selling their products on international markets

Answer

Challenges (any two points and link to text) (25 marks)

- The firm is not known abroad to date
- Ireland's location means the firm will have high transport costs in selling abroad
- Product standards and regulations of other countries have to be met
- Export business will require the use of different languages
- Trading in different currencies leaves a firm open to exchange risk if one currency changes in value relative to the other

- Payment difficulties, it may not be easy to make secure payment between different countries

Opportunities (any two points and link to the text)

- EU membership gives Irish firms free access to the markets of other member countries
- Exporting gives access to very large markets
- Euro currency gives Irish companies an advantage exporting to other Eurozone countries, i.e. no exchange risk
- The English language is an advantage for Irish companies as it is the most used language in international trade

(c) Suggest a new ownership structure for the business. Contrast the possible benefits of this structure with being a sole trader.

Answer

Any six points from below, pointing out the contrasts

Marks 6 x 5

Suggested new ownership structure is to form a Private Limited Company

Benefits of limited company (contrast with sole trader)

- Owners have limited liability
- Can raise more capital by selling additional shares
- New shareholders bring additional finance
- New shareholders bring additional expertise and skills
- Risks of business are shared
- Easier to get loans from banks
- Continuity of business if a shareholder dies

Benefits of a sole trader (contrast with Limited Company)

- The owner gets all the profits
- The owner has full control
- Quick decisions can be made, no consultation required
- The business has privacy, does not have to disclose accounts
- Easy, quick and cheap to set up
